(Registration/Networking starting at 7:30 am)

Maximizing our water supply is vital to the economic prosperity of the region. It is imperative that water agencies, local government and key stakeholders work together to identify practical conservation policies and practices for businesses and local residents.

For more than a decade, the San Bernardino County Water Conference has brought together thousands of participants from all parts of the State of California and the Nation to share ideas and insights about the management of this most precious resource.
